

We will be hearing
'What does best governance and fair decision making mean to you?'

And we will be investigating how the principles of deeper democracy are already alive in your work in Scotland and how we could be making it better still by learning and applying elements of dynamic self governance...

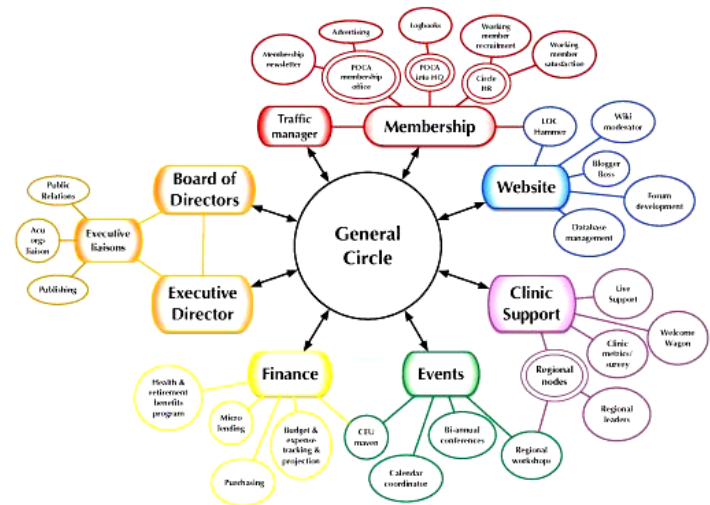

We will also start to explore: what could 'it' mean for us in Scotland now?

Costs: from £10 - £50,
YOU DECIDE!
(this is a Care-Share-Economy event)

Proposed timetable of the 3 hour seminar:

1. (40mins) Round of Introductions where each participant briefly shares their answers to the questions asked opposite.
2. (40mins) Presentation by John Buck on Dynamic Self Governance, in particular context of Collective Impact. With Questions and Answer session.
3. (10-15mins) INTERVAL
4. (40mins) Round table discussion with trained DSG facilitators.
5. (40mins) Forward Planning

Some Questions we will be asking...

- How do you make decisions when people have intensely opposite opinions?
- How do you make sure managers/owners/employees/participants in your organizations don't ignore the needs and opinions of anyone who works in the organisations?
- How do you select people for roles and responsibilities?
- How do you give people, esp elected representatives, feedback on their performance

This seminar will be the beginning of a new learning and research cycle into deep democracy in Scotland. Come and be part of it and determine with us the next follow up steps.

Last year several introductions to "Dynamic Self Governance", a globally successful system thinking based tool, were offered in Scotland. Now it is time to check in again, and it is your chance to meet the people connected with it from the Central Belt; Moray, Inverness-shire, as well as John Buck, author of "We the People", who will give the "Collective Impact" presentation we did not have time or learning space for last year.
